

Fact Find

This week's cover story is organized into three sections. Each section has a subhead. The subhead gives you information about the main ideas that follow in that section.

Search for the answers to the questions below in the corresponding sections of the cover story.

An Ancient Skeleton Helps Us Understand Our Continent's Past

1. Who found the Kennewick Man's skull? _____
2. Where were the bones found? _____
3. Why was the skeleton named Kennewick Man? _____
4. Why is Kennewick Man of importance to scientists? _____

5. What obstacle did scientists face before they could study Kennewick Man?

6. What did Indian tribes want to do with the bones? _____

What the Bones Reveal

7. What did scientists learn about Kennewick Man after studying the bones? List three findings.

Who Discovered America?

8. How might the earliest Americans have come to America? Give two examples.

Unanswered Questions

9. What questions do you still have about Kennewick Man? _____

10. Do you think it is important for scientists to be allowed to study ancient skeletons? Why or why not? Explain on the back of this page.